

Abstract

A tool for deploying an expandable structure into interior body regions provides a catheter body having an interior lumen. The catheter body carries an 5 expandable structure. A stylet is sized configured for passage through the lumen and adapted to straighten the expandable structure during deployment into an interior body region.